It’s an unfortunate fact, Philadelphia is experiencing an alarming increase in crime, driven largely by gun violence. It’s a rough start to the State of North Broad, but this trend is indeed finding its way on North Broad and other corridors across the city. The bottom line is we must address it if we are going to continue to see progress and make no mistake – we will see progress.

According to the Brookings Institute, in June 2022, the most significant piece of gun violence prevention legislation in decades, the bipartisan Safer Communities Act, became law and allocated $250 million for community-based violence prevention initiatives.

This legislation is important to the work of the North Broad Renaissance (NBR) as we address some of the root causes or “symptoms” of gun violence which include economic disinvestment, and poverty.

Collectively there are 279 commercial corridors and 16 Business Improvement Districts addressing the symptoms of gun violence. We’re implementing Clean and Safe programs across neighborhoods, supporting business growth and business attraction, investing in neighborhoods, improving the quality of life across the city, and identifying ways to maintain those investments over the years. We work with our elected officials, serve as advocates, work with local police, and our city agencies to support our work. Collectively, we are partners in safety who believe in this city’s potential, and we know that our work has a significant influence on violence, poverty rates, unemployment, and income inequality.

In 2024, the city’s local political landscape will look differently and what’s key for anyone looking to fill these seats is understanding the value and importance of working in partnership with organizations like the North Broad Renaissance, recognizing our work in preventing the symptoms of violence, and working with us to create bold policy and implementing best practices to change this narrative.

Throughout the report, we’re featuring some of our partners in safety, both on North Broad Street and across the city, who are working to continue moving this city forward.

Thanks to all our partners who are continuing this important work in 2023 and beyond.

“ In February 2022, Shalimar Thomas was recognized by the Philadelphia Business Journal as one of Philadelphia’s 100 Most Powerful individuals. ”

Shalimar Thomas
Executive Director
The North Broad Renaissance is a non-profit organization that serves as a Special Service District (SSD) whose primary role is to provide communication and information to City administrators and Council, neighborhood and community groups and others who are (or may) do business, development, or other activities on North Broad, from City Hall to Butler Street.

The only African American woman-led SSD in Philadelphia, North Broad Renaissance is playing a key role in helping businesses, institutions, and residents address the symptoms of gun violence and bounce back better than before after the pandemic.

In partnership with community stakeholders, the NBR is revitalizing the community, creating opportunities, and improving the economic power and overall quality of life along North Broad by doing the following:

- Keeping North Broad safe and clean;
- Maintaining and improving greenspace along North Broad;
- Marketing North Broad to the community and visitors, and communication with stakeholders;
- Ensuring innovative, strategic, and diverse business attraction, business retention, and business development;
- Supporting businesses and institutions in navigating ongoing challenges related to the COVID-19 pandemic.
NORTH BROAD PROGRAMS

Clean & Safe
The North Broad Renaissance (NBR) Clean and Safe program works to create a flawless experience for all those who live, work, and visit North Broad Street. In partnership with various city agencies and the community, we help maintain the beauty and vibrancy of the corridor year-round.

Maintenance & Landscaping
NBR Maintenance and Landscaping Program is an opportunity to beautify green space along the corridor. In addition to ongoing landscaping of 50 planting beds, the NBR also works to identify other opportunities for beautification.

Economic Development
The NBR Economic Development program plants seeds of success locally and regionally by focusing on business retention and attraction. Over time, the program will consist of quality and targeted BR&A programs that improve the business operating climate, ensures competition remains healthy, provides quality jobs and employment opportunities and assist in creating a stable and equitable economy.

Marketing & Communications
The NBR identifies platforms, partnerships, and influencers that will help spread awareness, promote community engagement and get locals and visitors excited about coming to North Broad Street. The goal is to increase community engagement, foot traffic, and visitors, which has a direct impact on business growth, economic vitality, and increasing employment opportunities for the North Broad community.

A Business Improvement District for North Broad
In September 2022, Philadelphia City Council voted to approve a business improvement district (BID) along North Broad Street. The legislation is the culmination of a multi-year journey to revitalize the central corridor north of City Hall after decades of disinvestment and in the face of recent gentrification. There are several BIDs in existence throughout Philadelphia including Center City and Fishtown, both neighbors of the North Broad Corridor. Business Improvement Districts provide another level to stimulate economic activity in the area and will be a useful tool in the effort to revitalize North Broad. The North Broad BID will be supported through mandatory property owner assessments and fund services such as street maintenance, greenery planting, safety initiatives, and economic development programs. The North Broad BID is slated to launch in January 2024.

More people and businesses are calling North Broad Street home. North Broad Street, which stretches across 14 neighborhoods, 9 zip codes, and parts of 16 census tracts, is one of Philadelphia’s most diverse areas. More than 60,000 residents call the area home, an increase of 7,000 from last year and more than 2,600 businesses are based here (also an increase from last year).

Block Groups (blue) and Zip Codes (green) Along North Broad

!Map of North Broad Street with block groups and zip codes

The North Broad Renaissance (NBR) target area consists of 38 Census block groups (covering parts of 16 census tracts) along North Broad Street from City Hall to Germantown Avenue.
North Broad Street anchors adjacent neighborhoods throughout North Central Philadelphia, supporting businesses and community mainstays, and connecting residents to entertainment, retail, and jobs. The North Broad Renaissance target area spans from City Hall to Germantown Avenue and touches the neighborhoods of Center City East, Center City West/Logan Square, Callowhill, West Poplar, Spring Garden, Francisville/Fairmount, North Central, Yorktown, Hartranft, Stanton, Glenwood, Tioga, Franklinville, and Hunting Park.

The People
More than 62,000 residents live along the corridor and in its adjacent census block groups. The area’s population is racially and ethnically diverse, with 45 percent of its residents identifying as Black, 32 percent white, 12 percent Asian, and nearly 8 percent of Hispanic or Latinx origin (of any race). It is also a young community, with nearly 42 percent of North Broad residents are between the ages of 20 and 39, in part reflecting a strong university student presence. Residents ages 10 to 19 (school age population) comprise an additional 16 percent of the area population. Gender is evenly distributed between men and women, with slightly more women than men (in line with citywide numbers). The North Broad area’s population is expected to grow by two percent from 2022 to 2027, which represents a greater growth rate than the city’s projected population decrease of almost one percent.
Educational Attainment

Compared to Philadelphia as a whole, the area around North Broad Street has a higher rate of college completion, at 36 percent (for a Bachelor’s or higher) compared to 31 percent citywide. However, educational attainment varies widely across the area.

Source: ESRI Business Analyst (2021)
Student Presence

Strong educational and academic medical institutions along the corridor attract a large population of young adults. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic throughout 2020 and 2021, area universities have had to adjust their policies as public health guidance and Philadelphia and Pennsylvania regulations have developed. After two years of remote learning during the pandemic, many area universities have returned to in-person or hybrid classes.

In addition to a large student resident population, the corridor has historically also had a strong presence of students commuting from other areas to North Broad Street to learn or work at the area institutions, including Temple University, Temple University Hospital, and the Community College of Philadelphia. The COVID-19 pandemic reduced foot traffic in the area, posing challenges from the area businesses that depend on students and these institutions to survive and thrive. However, the NBR’s campaigns to support businesses, together with the return of increased foot traffic over the past year, has helped North Broad’s recovery.

There are also more than 4,600 youth living in the North Broad area who are enrolled in public and private K-12 institutions, supporting the need for strong educational institutions and youth-oriented services. The corridor is home to the School District of Philadelphia headquarters at 440 North Broad Street, and North Broad residents have access to a diverse group of public, private, and faith-based K-12 educational institutions.
The area around North Broad has a diverse and well-maintained housing stock that accommodates a range of residents’ needs and preferences. The overall picture has remained the same since 2022: of the more than 3,100 properties within the immediate area (directly along the corridor), more than 60 percent are single family or multifamily housing. While commercial and mixed-use properties represent only 14 percent of the total number of properties in the area, their property values are much higher than any other use type (almost half of the total property value). These buildings have a strong presence in the area, housing both large anchor institutions and local businesses.

In the full North Broad area, nearly one in three occupied housing units are owner occupied, a continuation of recent housing trends. Similarly, housing vacancy is roughly the same as last year, with more than 16 percent of the area's 22,000 housing units identified as vacant. This is connected both with the impact of the pandemic as well as a growth in the total number of housing units available in the area, as recent developments have come onto the market.

In January 2022, the North Broad Renaissance was awarded a $123,000 grant from the James L. and John S. Knight Foundation to support the Lights of North Broad Augmented Reality Tour. This interactive experience broadcasts the vibrant developments and the storied history along the North Broad corridor. Thanks to the support of the James L. and John S. Knight Foundation, and Comcast, North Broad Renaissance was able to kick off this project to engage and keep the community connected to the evolving narrative that is North Broad Street. In March 2022, the Knight Foundation recognized Shalimar Thomas for her work building stronger, more engaged communities, similarly under-resourced communities.

After a precipitous drop in construction activity and permits in 2020, 2021 saw a sharp rebound in permitting. The permits for 2022 have exceeded 2020 levels but fall below levels for the previous year and pre-pandemic highs. However, as the “Development along North Broad” section shows, there are still many large projects under construction and in the pipeline.

“ In partnership with Brian Murray of Shift Capital, the North Broad Renaissance created the North Broad Real Estate Commission, which is a collective of real estate owners and developers driving a collaborative approach to development along North Broad Street. Together, the Commission supports the equitable development of real estate projects, strengthens the ties among these projects, and fosters the ecosystem of developers driving more community-oriented real estate and business development.”
Rents along North Broad Street tend to be higher closer to Center City and decrease heading north, around Germantown Avenue. Of course, there is variation both between and within neighborhoods, with newly renovated buildings generally commanding higher rents. In neighborhoods to the north, where housing tends to be older with fewer amenities, rent ranges from as low as an average of $1,000 a month for one-bedroom units in smaller buildings to up to around $1,400 for three-bedroom.

An increasingly wide range of rental rates for available units reflects a bifurcation in the rental market, with the addition of new luxury housing alongside continued relative affordability in older or smaller buildings.
6. JOBS AND BUSINESSES ALONG NORTH BROAD

Approximately 18,800 residents of North Broad area census tracts work, including three percent of whom are employed within the exact area and many more who work nearby. Per capita income of resident workers is approximately $23,300 (compared to nearly $29,000 citywide), and the unemployment rate is 12 percent, in line with the city’s average for the year.

Of course, unemployment numbers have been in fluctuation from one month to the next, based on local COVID-19 rates and the resulting restrictions on businesses. Citywide, the unemployment rate has been on a relatively steady decline since the beginning of 2021 following society’s desire for normalization and economic recovery. Unemployment across the city peaked in April 2020 at 17%, in April 2021 unemployment hovered around 9.7%, the same time this year the unemployment rate was 6%.

Approximately 2,680 businesses provide nearly 68,000 jobs in the North Broad area. Approximately 41 percent of these are in the Health Care, Education Services, and Professional Services sectors, generally characterized as high-skill, high-wage jobs - jobs that may be less susceptible to COVID-19 related job losses. The largest employers on North Broad Street include Shriners Hospital for Children – Philadelphia, Temple University Hospital, Temple University, and Hahnemann University Hospital, as well as the City of Philadelphia. With the completion of the new Philadelphia Police Department headquarters, hundreds of additional jobs will come to North Broad Street. People commute from all over Philadelphia and nearby communities to work along North Broad Street.

- South of Poplar Street, large numbers of residents of South Philadelphia, West Philadelphia (particularly beyond University City), Lower Northwest (including East Falls, Roxborough, and Manayunk), and Central Northeast commute in for work.

- From Poplar Street to Lehigh Avenue, people commute from Lower North Philadelphia (including Strawberry Mansion) and Lower Northeast (East Kensington, Northern Liberties, and Fishtown), as well as from parts of Germantown and West Philadelphia.

- North of Lehigh, up to Germantown Avenue, people primarily come from Far Northeast (Bustleton) and Lower Northeast (including Fishtown, Kensington, and Northern Liberties). Many people also commute to this section of North Broad from Elkins Park, Abington, and Jenkintown in Montgomery County.

\(^4\) ESRI Business Analyst (2022)

\(^5\) While not all City of Philadelphia employees work within the North Broad area, they do make up a substantial portion of these jobs. As of 2019, more than 50,000 people worked along North Broad below Poplar Street, many of whom were City employees.

\(^6\) Bureau of Labor Statistics OnTheMap (2019) than 50,000 people worked along North Broad below Poplar Street, many of whom were City employees.
Area residents and commuters benefit from convenient access to the city's major job centers including Center City, University City, and the Navy Yard. In addition, North Broad Renaissance is focused on expanding existing access to additional employment opportunities in the professional services, health, technology, and arts and culture sectors along and adjacent to North Broad Street.

Jobs along North Broad Street cover a wide range of industries, including education, medicine, manufacturing, finance, real estate, government, and retail. Compared to University City and the South Broad Street area, North Broad Street is particularly strong in manufacturing and government. All three areas have a strong presence of educational and medical institutes compared to the city as a whole.

“The North Broad Renaissance continues to host monthly roundtable meetings to support the growth of North Broad businesses. In addition, to help grow BIPOC-owned businesses, Philly ad agency RTO+P announced a partnership with North Broad Renaissance to provide complimentary marketing services to businesses in the North Broad community.”

Job Industries along North Broad and in Comparable Neighborhoods
Employment and Income

The 2022 median household income in North Broad Census Block Groups is $40,000 compared to $53,000 in the city overall. Approximately 27 percent of all North Broad Street households have an income level below $15,000 annually, compared to 17 percent citywide. While it is not known exactly how many people in the area lost their jobs in connection with COVID-19 and the recession thereafter, it is important to note that job losses disproportionately affect lower income households that are less likely to have savings to carry them through tough times. In addition, more than 11,000 of 55,000 people living along North Broad are students. While not all of these students are heads of households, they also represent a portion of the households earning less than $15,000 annually.

Looking forward, North Broad median household incomes are expected to grow by 27 percent over the next five years, to $51,100 (surpassing an anticipated growth in median household incomes citywide of 18 percent).

DEVELOPMENT
7. DEVELOPMENT ALONG NORTH BROAD

There is $3.49 billion in assessed property value along North Broad Street between City Hall and Germantown Avenue. Commercial and mixed-use properties, which include office space, restaurants, and retail locations, represent slightly less than half of the total assessed property value in the area, at $844 million.

Residential properties, which include both single family and multifamily buildings, represent an additional $2.08 billion in assessed value. Industrial properties and vacant land contribute relatively small amounts to the overall property values along the corridor, as they represent a smaller number of properties and have lower values than other uses, on average.

Although the COVID-19 pandemic impacted the real estate market and property development in 2020, activity has rebounded. There are currently more than 6,000 residential units under construction or in the pipeline, in addition to 800,000+ square feet of office and retail space.

1. Permits have been approved for renovations of the Logan Theater located at 4732 N. Broad Street. Originally built in 1923, the 1,894-seat theater once screened silent films accompanied by live orchestrion. Interior architectural features included a fresco, depictions of mythological creatures, and a ballroom. The theater shuttered its doors in 1973 and reopened as the Deliverance Evangelist Church later that year. In 1992, the church left the location, and despite attempts to restore the theater, it has remained closed until the present. However, Tony, Urban, and Gospel Award winner Nolbert Brown Jr. plans to restore the theater to its former glory. With a soft-opening date in early 2023, the theater will be dedicated to actress Cicely Tyson. The project is estimated to create 200-350 new jobs with starting wages of $15 an hour. The restored ballroom will be equipped to host catered events and the lower-level space will house a performing arts and music school.

2. The Beury Building at 3701 North Broad Street, formerly occupied by the National Bank of North Philadelphia, is undergoing a two-phase transformation led by developer Shift Capital. The second phase will see the construction of approximately 20,000 square feet of retail space and 90 additional residential units.

Directly on the corridor above the Broad Street subway, the walk score of the North Broad Street area is identified as a "walker’s paradise." High walk, bike, and transit scores indicate a more vibrant, healthy, accessible, and environmentally friendly neighborhood. Transit Options

Residents, commuters, and visitors benefit from a variety of public transportation options along the North Broad Street corridor. There are eight SEPTA subway stations located in the North Broad Renaissance area, including Race-Vine, Spring Garden, Fairmount, Girard, Cecil B. Moore, Susquehanna-Dauphin, North Philadelphia, Allegheny, and Erie. In addition to subway service, SEPTA offers expansive bus service, enabling residents and patrons of North Broad Street to travel throughout the city.

Almost two years after the onset of covid, SEPTA has returned to near normal service. As of August 2022, the Broad Street Line is operating on eight-minute intervals during peak hours and a maximum of fifteen during off hours on weekdays. In addition to regular service SEPTA has been conducting deep cleaning at various stations over the summer, including Ellsworth-Federal Station (BSL) and Wyoming Station (BSL).

As of the beginning of 2022, SEPTA’s monthly ridership was 7.4 million riders, a million rider increase from the same time last year. However, ridership is still decreased compared to preacademic levels of 17 million riders. Changing employment and commuter patterns are likely to have long-term ridership implications.

SEPTA’s has continued their program, “Safety, Cleaning, Ownership, Partnerships and Engagement” (SCOPE), launched last year. The program includes a variety of maintenance and safety measures aimed at improving support for vulnerable populations. As of September 2022, SEPTA is developing a program to connect vulnerable populations at transportation stops with Drexel medical students.

“The North Broad Renaissance served as a partner organization, leading the Broad, Germantown, and Erie Task Force. Collective, the group is bringing restoration, beautification, traffic safety, and investments to the Broad, Germantown, and Erie Intersection.

Broad, Germantown, and Erie Project
The Broad, Germantown, and Erie Project is an initiative of the Philadelphia City Planning Department to develop the intersection of Broad Street, Germantown Avenue, and Erie Avenue into a community hub that serves a multitude of purposes. The project started work in summer 2021 and was split into three phases to better integrate changes and mitigate residents and businesses' concerns about changing traffic-patterns. The intersection has been cleaned and landscaped and soon (if not already) will have four sets of tables and chairs, a trashcan, and a small play area. Additionally, a "no right turn" sign and flex posts have been added to improve traffic safety. Phase 2 of the project is due to begin in 2022. The full project will include:

- Erie Avenue track removal.
- Introduction of bus lanes, improved bus stops, and protected bike lanes to Erie Avenue.
- Pedestrian safety improvements at several intersections including shorter and safe crosswalks, new line striping paint, and new pavement.
- An elevator will provide ADA accessibility to Broad Street Line at the Erie Station.

9. PUBLIC SAFETY ALONG NORTH BROAD

In line with national trends in major cities, crime and gun violence have increased in Philadelphia and along North Broad Street in the past two years. The most common crime incidents along North Broad in 2022 continue categorized as thefts, simple assault, and vandalism/criminal mischief.

In late 2021, the Philadelphia Police Department moved into the renovated, state-of-the-art Philadelphia Police Headquarters in the historic Elverson Building (more commonly known as the Philadelphia Inquirer) at 400 North Broad Street. Police department operations moved to the new headquarters in 2022, bringing significant employment and a strong safety presence to North Broad.

QUALITY OF LIFE
10. QUALITY OF LIFE ALONG NORTH BROAD

“ In June 2022, The North Broad Renaissance engaged ULI Philadelphia to convene a Technical Assistance Panel (TAP) with the overall goal of examining strategies for the creation and maintenance of green spaces for the four miles along North Broad Street and as a way to create replicable models in similarly under-resourced communities. The report is available online at northbroad.org. ”

North Broad Renaissance has been an indispensable resource in supporting businesses through the COVID-19 pandemic while maintaining its commitment to core services related to cleanliness and safety, maintenance and landscaping, marketing, and economic development. These actions will continue to serve as important assets as we emerge from the pandemic and focus on building back stronger, more resilient communities. The following sections highlight a few of the ways that the NBR has ensured that its longstanding work continues to meet the most urgent needs of residents, businesses, and visitors to North Broad.

Clean and Safe
Businesses and individuals only thrive when the community is a clean and safe place to live, work, and play. Since 2016, the NBR’s Clean and Safe program has supported the hiring of local residents who are trained to maintain cleanliness throughout the four-mile North Broad business corridor.

Thanks to the funding from the Philadelphia Taking Care of Business initiative, the NBR was able to continue efforts for the 6th year in a row. Throughout the past year, this program continued to provide a presence along the corridor, track and address illegal dumping, manage graffiti, and keep the corridor clean during increased vacancies caused by the pandemic. Thanks to their efforts, North Broad has seen a 16 percent decrease in the overall litter present in the area.
Broader Green Initiative
The NBR collaborated with local vendors that work with at-risk communities, including returning citizens and low-skill individuals, to train and hire residents from the North Broad community. Thanks to these partnerships and the support of Live Nation, the NBR was able to maintain 50 city planters – all with the goal of improving the overall quality of life and economic vitality in one of Philadelphia’s poorest communities.

Philadelphia: An Age-Friendly, Livable City for All
In partnership with AARP and the City of Philadelphia, the NBR works to create and preserve green and open spaces in neighborhoods that currently are underserved. Chaired by Shalimar Thomas, the Open Space Committee and Buildings Committee’s priorities include increasing the number of planters and other beautification efforts along commercial corridors where this is a priority and bringing blighted, vacant land properties to “cleaned and greened” status so that they can be converted into productive use, such as pocket parks, community gardens, farmers markets, parklets, plazas and works of public art. The NBR is also an advocate for long-term maintenance plans to sustain open and green spaces in the low-income communities we serve.

“Leading the effort as the Chair of the Open and Green Space Committee, the North Broad Renaissance is a part of the AARP Pennsylvania Livable Communities Network which is comprised of representatives from over 57 community-based organizations and city departments. The AARP Pennsylvania Livable Communities Network, in collaboration with the Mayor’s Commission on Aging, is laying out an action plan which includes recommendations on tangible, community-wide improvements needed to enhance the well-being of City residents.”
